

From the Pilot Factory, 1942

Sample Pages

Copyright 2005. Published by Texas A&M University Press

CONTENTS

Preface	ix
Chapters
1. A Good Day at the Factory	3
2. A Bad Day	5
3. How the Pilot Factory Came to Be	7
4. The Factory Door Opens for Me	12
5. Pre-flight Center: Kelly Field, March and April, 1942	17
6. Primary Flight School: Garner Field, April to July, 1942	25
7. Basic Flight School: Randolph Field, July to September, 1942	46
8. Advanced Flight School: Brooks Field, September to November, 1942	66
9. Hello, Silver Wings, So Long, San Antone	82
10. Out of the Factory and into a Funk: December, 1942, to February, 1943	88
11. In Search of a Squadron: January to March, 1943	95
12. Squadron Found: Alliance Army Air Base, March 15 to August 24, 1943	104
13. It All Comes Down to Flying a Nice, Tight Formation	130
14. The Factory Declares Me a Finished Product	133
15. To War by the Northern Route	135
16. Impressions of England: October, 1943, to April, 1944	140
17. A 48-Hour Pass Usually Means Another Trip to London	147
18. A New CO Takes Over and the Group Shapes Up	150
19. Final Run-up to D-Day: March to June, 1944	153
20. Watching the War from a C-47	158
21. Rest Leave at Cannes	169
22. VE-Day	172
23. Home via the Southern Route	174
Epilogue	178
Notes	185
Sources	187
Index	189